

It is your job to protect the free speech not only of the wealthiest, but also of the ordinary citizen, like me.

It is clear that Sinclair Broadcasting wants to reelect President Bush because his policies encourage monopolizers like Sinclair to take over more and more of the publicly-owned airwaves.

For this reason, Sinclair Broadcasting plans to air a biased and destructive "documentary" attacking John Kerry and force all of its stations to air it. Extremely biased programs aren't illegal, but they should be countered in some way with, say, the truth.

The FCC can and should put a stop to this kind of abuse of the public trust (as it ought to do with the Republican Party's mouthpiece, Fox News).

In our so-called democracy, free speech is becoming more and more of an exclusive privilege of the most powerful and rich.

Do your job as regulators.
